Gifts That Grew

In the days when people from Europe were first settling in America, there were many times when they had very little food. Luckily for the newcomers, some American Indians showed them how to use certain plants for food.

One of the first Indians to help the newcomers was an Algonquin (ol-GON-kin) chief named Massasoit (MASS-uh-soit). Massasoit showed the Pilgrims how to plant corn, store it for future use, and cook it. Today when you eat corn-on-the-cob, cornbread, corn muffins, hominy, or popcorn, you can thank the Indians.

The Ojibway (o-JIB-way) Indians of the Northeast showed the Pilgrims how they tapped sugar-maple trees and made maple syrup. Soon the Pilgrims were enjoying this delicious treat too.

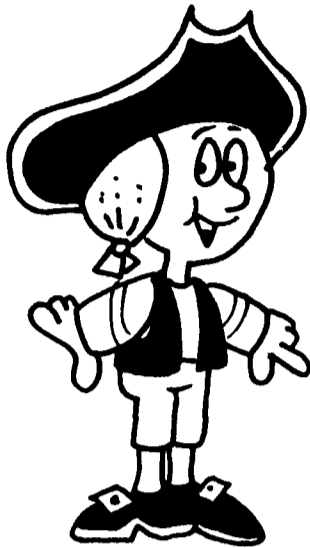

Other Indians introduced the early settlers to rice, sweet potatoes, pumpkins, sunflower seeds, and many more plants. Some of the settlers would never have survived without these "gifts that grew."

4-H Beef Club

The February meeting of the Hunterdon County 4-H Sheep Club was held earlier this month at the Rodenberger home in Pittstown. Debbie Gengler, Melissa Yontz and Gretchen Kuehn gave a presentation on their 1983 Citizenship Washington Focus trip. Committee reports and upcoming events were discussed.

Members will visit the Somerset Sheep Farm during their March meeting.
