

Floral contest is held

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Penn State Flower Judging Team took second place in the Intercollegiate Flower Judging and Floral Design Contest held recently at University Park. Judging teams representing North Carolina State University and the University of Illinois won first and third place, respectively. The contest is sponsored annually by the American Florists Endowment; Pi Alpha Xi, national floriculture and ornamental horticulture fraternity; and SAF — Center for Commercial Floriculture.

Alan Jones, Penn State, was high-scorer in the individual judging competition, followed by Margaret Bortfeld of Michigan State University who won first place in cut flower classes.

This year's design competition was divided into four sections: professional centerpiece class, professional continental mixed flower bouquet, nonprofessional centerpiece class, and non-professional symmetrical triangle class.

The contest, which is hosted by a different university each year, drew 18 teams for its 1984 competition. Long distance travelers included teams from the University of California at Davis, New Mexico State University, Texas A & M, and Oklahoma State University. The American Florists Endowment and Pi Alpha Xi contributed travel expenses for the contest.
