agency scheduled for sunset review and possible termination.

Testifying on behalf of the Milk Marketing Board, Charles Wismer, Master of the Pa. State Grange, said the board provides a necessary service to farmers.

"As a dairy farmer," Wismer said, "the Milk Marketing Board provides a place to go to if we have a problem such as butterfat testing or receiving our milk checks." The Board, he added, provides price stability and maintains the security fund on behalf of dairymen.

Donald Ranck, a Lancaster County dairymen representing the Pa. Farmers Association, said the continuation of the Board is necessary. "We recognize the contribution that the Board has made to our industry and wholeheartedly support the enactment of legislation to re-establish this invaluable agency," Ranck said.

In contrast to the support given the Milk Marketing Board, Pittsburgh Mayor Richard Caliguiri called for the elimination of the Board and the regulation of milk pricing done by legislative adoption of the Minnesota-Wisconsin pricing scheme.

Caliguiri said that the Board's functions, except the establishment of minimum wholesale and retail milk prices for retailers, serves an important function and must be maintained. He suggested that this be carried out under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture.

In addition to the hearing on the Milk Marketing Board, testimony was also heard on the Farm Show Commission. Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell stressed the need for the Commission in planning, conducting and managing Farm Show exhibits.

Stolen semen

The semen was stolen from the Ross-Wood and Cold Springs Dairy Farms in New Windsor, Md., Crescent Farm in Columbus, N.J. and Big Way Farm in Upper Freehold, N.J.

The indictments said that the semen was brought into Pennsylvania for sale last June 24, August 22 and Sept. 8.

Kelly is presently a fugitive from the law and is being sought.

His father, Jack Kelly Sr., of Bear, Del. and brothers, Paul and Charles, previously pleaded guilty to charges involved in the semen thefts.
