

'Pleasurable Suicide' — What a way to go!

Rutter's restaurant manager Jim Goodyear builds an Epicurean epitome of dairy delights

RED LION — Here's a dairy month riddle.

What has two bananas, a dozen scoops of ice cream, streams of tasty, gooey toppings, a cascade of whipped cream, coating of mixed nuts and — needless to say — juicy red maraschino cherries?

And the answer is — trumpet rolls, please — a "Pleasurable Suicide!"

That's how the Rutters Restaurants describe the most formidable ice cream creation on the menu at their three locations in Red Lion, York and Shrewsbury.

It was also the most impressive mountain of dairy dessert ever seen by York County's new dairy princess Judy Perry, alternates Kelly Kilgore and Darcy Feeser, and court members Lisa Warner and Karen Klahold, who gathered with a few friends at the Red Lion Rutters restaurant for a bit of pageant weekend indulgence in — what else — ice cream.

Manager and master sundae builder Jim Goodyear and his assistant Verlyn Smith opened up their kitchen dairy bar area to the princesses for a quickie lesson in concocting this granddaddy of banana splits.

With the quick, polished strokes of a professional, Goodyear nestled a trio of ice cream scoops into the bottom of a foot-high, elegant glass sundae serving dish. Around the outside of that foundation went a banana, divided into several long segments.

Three more scoops completed the first series of additions. Over the vanilla, chocolate, strawberry, chocolate chip mint and orange sherbert went various toppings.

Then, back to the ice cream freezer, for a second round of six more scoops of ice cream, surrounded by segments of a second banana, followed by still another trip to the topping dispenser for more gooey chocolate, marshmallow, peanut butter, and pineapple.

Now to the icing on the cake — so to speak. Goodyear carefully tipped the stainless container and artistically piped a solid, swirling cover of fluffy whipped cream over the mound.

With a final flourish, a sprinkling of mixed nuts and vivid red cherry — er, in this case, several of them — crowned the elegant creation.

Armed with long-handled sundae spoons and pretzel stick munchies, the dairy demolition team launched an all-out assault on the glacier of frothy and frozen creams.

While the action slowed about half way through the battle, a clinking of spoons against the bottom of the glass server signalled the demise of the Pleasurable Suicide into a mere puddled remaining remnant of earlier glory.

The verdict? Delicious!

And not one of the Pleasurable Suicide partakers chose to take advantage of the fine print optional accompanied offered on the menu.
