

Lloyd Gifford "Is" Farmington Garage

If you call Farmington Garage and ask for the owner, sales, service, parts, airport manager or chief pilot you will end up talking with Lloyd G. Gifford.

"After I got out of the Navy I went to flight school," notes Gifford. He then returned to "downtown" Farmington and opened up an auto repair shop. That was 35 years ago and in 1956

he took on the Ford tractor line.

Today, the garage, which is at 1016 Biggs Highway offers the complete Ford tractor line and specializes in parts for Ford tractors built since 1939.

"The other day a fellow from West Chester called looking for a transmission gear for a 4-speed transmission on a 1956 Ford tractor," he remembers. The customer was surprised that Farmington Garage had the part because the list of places he called extended to two pages.

Lloyd is impressed with the changes he has seen in his customers over the years. "Over all, farmers are more business-like and professional than they had been in the early days of this dealership."

He concentrates on providing a good product and following up with service when it is needed.

"In the winter when things slow down, I overhaul airplanes," concludes this multi-talented Ford dealer.

Farmer-Run Stanley's Farm

Service Open Since 1946

Ford 5610 Tractor

You expect your Ford tractor dealer to know and understand your farming problems, but at Stanley's Farm Service, Klingerstown, Pa. farming is a way of life.

Stanley Kreywiski was, and still is, a farmer. In 1946 he started selling Ford tractors and implements to his Schuylkill County neighbors. In 1965 he turned the business over to his sons, Stan and Frank, and went back to farming. You will find Stanley's Farm Service between Higgins and Pitman on State Route 125.

Stan and Frank can tell you the names of all of their customers and most of the people in those farm families. But most of all they know exactly what problems their customers have and they can suggest just the right Ford product to solve those problems.

They sell new and used tractors, service, parts and lawn and garden products. But agricultural sales to a general farming population is the majority of their business.

Both the Tri-Valley and Line Mountain FFA programs are supported by Stanley's — they provided tractors and spreaders for the annual tractor driving contest. Look for a Stanley's Farm Service display at the Bloomsburg Fair again this year.
