

Cows and karate; milk and moo-ving

YORK — The Central Region Young Dairymen wrapped up their June dairy month activities last Saturday by filling the York Mall with a series of fitness demonstrations, contests, UHT milk samplings, dairy souvenirs, sweepstakes signups and that perennial crowd-pleaser, cows and calves.

A surprise contestant, Paul Kitson, of the Baltimore Blast soccer team, upset three other contenders in the cow milking contest. But he was defeated in the ice cream eating runoffs by P.M. Magazine's Blake Powell, who downed a pint of ice cream in two minutes and 40 seconds. Other contestants included Congressman Bill Goodling and Bruce Collins of 98 YCR radio.

In keeping with a fitness theme for the promotion, the day's scheduled special events included performances by aerobics and jazzercise groups, a karate demonstration and bodybuilders.

I'll have one

What is that?

Curiously but cautiously, little Mandy Stackpoole, of Manchester, Md., makes acquaintance with Hope, the Brown Swiss.

It's milking out time

Cows always draw spectators and milking out time by Dave Krone is no exception.

Helium-filled "Real" balloon, offered by Leroy Walker, prove a fascination for small fry.

Are they for Real?

Among fitness demonstrations at York Mall dairy promotion was a karate presentation.
