

NEMA egg show

BOSTON, Mass. — Directors of Northeast Egg Marketing Association meeting here last week enthusiastically endorsed first steps to bring a regional egg industry show to the Northeast in 1985 or before.

Atlantic City, N.J. is clearly the site of choice for the event according to information given the Board by Chris Bushway, general manager of NEMA.

"Samplings of opinion on the value of such an event to the industry, taken from producers and potential exhibitors show a very encouraging level of interest," she said.

To assist in launching the project a special committee has been named to assist her. It includes Al Wenger, of Rheems, Pa., chairman, Boyce Overstreet of Lakewood, N.J., David Baker of Middletown, Del. and Meyer

Kaplan of Glen Wild, N.Y.. With Atlantic City as the focal point, it was felt that the show would be easily accessible from any point in the Northeast and would offer top-flight facilities for service to producers and exhibitors.

Ed Houston of Lumber City, Ga., chairman of American Egg Board, provided the Board with an outline of progress made in structuring some changes in the national promotion organization. Houston says that he is already seeing dividends from moves made to put what is termed "movers and doers" on AEB key committees. There has been a reaching out by AEB to all industry organizations to overcome what he termed may have been a feeling that they were "on the outside-looking in" as far as AEB was concerned. Houston said he will not rest until everyone in the industry senses that their input to AEB is welcome and that its merits will be properly considered.

Houston commended Seaboard Foods, of Lakewood, N.J., for initial efforts to rally support for a National Egg Cooking Contest and now that this project has been named a priority objective of AEB he intends to do everything possible to guarantee it a fast track.

The Nema Board then had the opportunity to hear Boyce Overstreet describe plans the A.E.B. Chicken Cooking Contest Committee has for all areas of the country. There will be an adult contest and a contest targeted at home economics high school classes across the country.

The thought was expressed that such a national effort, aside from its direct stimulus to egg consumption, could be a means of building more cohesiveness in the egg industry.

In other business the Board heard reports that NEMA has had success in dealing with its own budgetary problems brought on by A-I.

Pennsylvania directors Jay Greider and John Snader briefed the Board on what, it is hoped, will be the final phases of the quarantine problem in the Lancaster area. They said that producers in the region will be counseling together on what they feel is reasonable, from the producer viewpoint, as regards any course of action the authorities may take in lifting the quarantine.

The point was raised, that when producer consensus is reached, NEMA might expect to be asked to give its support to the position that evolves. A good part of the meeting was occupied with discussion on how the UEP Marketing Order Committee and the All-Industry Task Force may meet any obligation to provide information to producers on the referendum choices they may one day have to make.
