A number of girls also won showmanship awards for their outstanding modeling skills. Winning senior showmanship awards were: Judy Rohrer; Tammy Phillips, Danette Caffrey, Cindy Harnish, Daphne Shenk, Stephanie Schaich and Denise Haldeman.

Winning junior showmanship awards were: Kery Freese, Diana Hershberger, Brenda Hess, Tina Mower, Tiffany Kohrer, Bonnie McCullough and Jennifer Shertzer.

During their struts across the stage, the girls showed evidence of having listened carefully to advice given in the workshops held earlier in the day.

In the workshop titled "Let Color Work For You," home economist Deb Strickler talked about the significance of a person's favorite color. She said that people who like red are often spirited and experience many emotional ups and downs, while people who prefer blue are usually conservative and hard workers.

Deb also explained the difference between warm and cool colors, noting that cool colors make you appear thinner and warm colors draw attention to you. She also reviewed color schemes with the 4-H'ers, explaining that a monochromatic color scheme is the safest because "it makes you look taller and thinner."

An analogous color scheme, one that uses from three to five colors side-by-side on the color wheel, also tends to make you look taller and thinner.

Complimentary schemes, which use colors from opposite ends of the wheel, "create a lot of interest," Deb said. However, she warned, they may also make you look larger.

In a hair care workshop conducted by Terry Photis from Lancaster School of Cosmetology and several of her students, the girls viewed some new hairstyles and learned about hair care products available to them.

They also learned the proper way to use a curling iron, curling brush and a blow dryer. The cosmetologists shared some summer hair care tips as well. They recommended wearing hats, using conditioner and reconditioner, and always washing hair immediately after swimming to remove chlorine.

Barbara Emmery's workshop on "Visual Poise" was probably the most helpful to the girls as they prepared for their stage appearance. Barbara told the girls that "It's very, very important how you carry yourself." Anywhere from 50 to 80 percent of first impressions are based on how you carry yourself, she stressed.

Barbara showed the girls the proper way to walk, stand and go up and down stairs. When a person walks straight and tall, with chin parallel to the ground, "People will assume that you're really confident," she told them. And, she continued, when people think you're confident, they treat you well and soon you begin to feel confident.

Delaware Co. extension demonstration

MEDIA — Are jams and jellies favorites of your family? If so, now is the time to preserve the delicious taste of fresh fruits for use next winter.

You may be surprised at the ease with which they can be made says Greta C. Vairo, extension home economist. The Penn State Extension Service has planned a lecture-demonstration on the making of these goodies to be held from 10 a.m. until noon on Wednesday, July 25th in the Hunt Club Building in Rose Tree Park, Media. The Park is located on Providence Road (Rt 252) just north of Rt.#1.

The public is invited to attend. There is no charge and no registration is needed.

Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university.

herd average is 19,476 lbs. "I tried to increase milk production with another feed," he says, "but it didn't work — so I went back to Purina. It's a lot better feed!"

Richard Muller, Washington, Illinois, who also feeds Purina High Octane brand 36% concentrate, reports a DHI rolling herd average of 19,962 lbs. "My father started feeding Purina Cow Chow about 1925 and the herd has been fed Purina since," Muller says. "We have always been satisfied with the results and felt that Purina has done more research than other companies."
