Del. bee warning given

DOVER, Del. — Delaware beekeepers are being urged to avoid purchasing queen bees and package bees from the state of Louisiana and Texas, following outbreaks of Acarine Mite (Acarapis woodi) in those areas.

Michael K. Brown, State Apiarist with the Delaware Department of Agriculture, says the mite entered the United States from Mexico and was discovered in Texas in July. From there it spread to Louisiana.

Officials in both states have ordered infected bees depopulated to stop the spread of the mite which attacks the internal functions of adult bees.

Brown says beekeepers in both states ship bees to other parts of the country and the mite could be spread easily.

"Already it's in two states that we know of and there is potential of finding it in other areas. The mite kills bees and could be devastating to our bee industry. The best way to fight it is to avoid any contact with apiary's in areas we know are infected," said Brown.

Brown says beekeepers who have purchased bees from Louisiana or Texas during the past year should contact him at (800) 282-8685.
