New Behavior

The other major study of Grevy's zebras showed them to form only temporary groups, the only permanent bond being between a mare and a foal. But Ginsberg has observed groups of mares and foals that stay together as long as four months within a male's territory. This variation may be a response to this group's own peculiar habitat. "Horses change their social organization in different habitats; why not zebras?" Ginsberg asks.

"Why do they form these groups?" he wonders. "Do the foals then associate as yearlings? Do they return to the same area when it's time for them to breed?"

Ginsberg will be pursuing the answers, from close behind, in this year's field season.

Crocheters who are looking for something different to make are sure to find "snowflakes" quick and easy. And they are excellent gifts and bazaar items.

When used as mobiles, window ornaments reflecting sunlight or as gift decorations, they make a magical addition to holiday decorations. This lovely crocheted snowflake is just part of a wonderful collection of crocheted

HAVING SOIL PROBLEMS?

Here's A Timely Tip...

Apply lime on frozen ground

Lime can be applied almost anytime, however winter months are ideal, because the ground is firm and the freezing and thawing action helps to disseminate the lime in the soil
