

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As I write this article, I'm sitting in a 50-year-old log cabin in Black Moshannon State Park. There are 14 cabins here in the mountains. Some have two rooms but ours is a one room with four bunk beds, a table and bench, electric stove and a refrigerator.

In case it gets too cool, we do have a stove insert in a fireplace too. We traveled back to Lancaster after spending the weekend here as we wanted to attend a banquet meeting. When we returned the next day, after fishing in Bald Eagle State Park, we discovered we'd had a little visitor. Something chewed up our tissues on the table — maybe a chipmunk as there are a lot around our cabin.

We invited our two daughters for the weekend and by some odd chance we all arrived at exactly the same time. After a picnic lunch, we unloaded the car — pots and pans, blankets and sheets, food and about 50 miscellaneous items.

Our girls were great on hiking and so after an afternoon swim, we walked on Seneca and Hayroad Trails. The next day we hiked Indian Trail after an outdoor church service. They took pictures of ferns, flowers and fungus but weren't quick enough to snap the two grouse and I chased up among some huckleberry bushes.

After they left for their jobs, we went fishing, but only caught small perch which we threw back. At this writing there is a golden colored catfish in our refrigerator waiting for others to join him — we hope.

Allen, my husband, brings me buckets of water to cook and wash the dishes. The one inconvenience that I don't like is having to go 200 feet to the bathhouse and toilet. Last night a bear and two cubs visited a nearby camp site.
