It won't last forever,
but you can probably pass it on to your son.

A lot of folks learned farming behind the wheel of their Dad's Ford. More than a few still fire up that same tractor for some serious work now and then.

Today's Ford tractors use technology that Dad never dreamed of. But take a good look at one of the ten mid-sized Series 10 tractors. You'll see the lasting strength of massive castings, sturdy axles and plenty of iron everywhere it's needed.

Inside, the story is even stronger. In engines with big strong working parts and wide bearing surfaces. In husky transmissions, double-reduction final drives and sealed wet disc brakes on all models of 36 or more PTO horsepower.

That kind of design integrity has earned Ford tractors the respect of the farmers who use them. No one outranks Ford in owner satisfaction with tractors in these power sizes. That's not Ford talking - it's what farmers said in a 1983 survey measuring the quality, reliability, durability, serviceability and maintenance of their 30-90 horsepower tractors.

What's more, every Ford tractor comes with the support of a dealer with the facilities, know-how and parts availability to see that it serves you long and well.

Some things are too good not to share. Pass it on.
