

A-Day held at Delaware Valley College

DOYLESTOWN — A-Day, a time when Delaware Valley College presents its finest to the public, was held last weekend on the college campus in Bucks County. Visitors enjoyed old-fashioned contests in logsawing, canoe-racing on Lake Archer, pie-eating and a milking competition. Other events held during the two day fair were: fitting and showmanship contests for beef, sheep, swine and dairy cattle; an extensive flower and garden show; an art show; music concerts and special children attractions. Displays concerning biology, chemistry, food science, business, agronomy and horticulture were also open for public inspection. All of the events and exhibits were prepared and presented by the students and faculty of the college.

Flower shows and beef shows were just two of the many events which unfolded during Delaware Valley College's 38th A-Day.

Preparing her Hereford for the show was Lisa Roerig, (right) a junior at the college. Assisting her was Andy Lindsay.

Rarick tops judging contest

DOYLESTOWN — Kenianna Rarick dominated the Spring Livestock Judging Contest held recently at Delaware Valley College. Rarick, the daughter of Ken and Roseanne Rarick, Berks County, was a member of the 4-H team that won the state 4-H judging contest last year.

Warren Hills FFA won the overall team competition. Team members were: John Torrance, Tracy Sodtablars, Erich Sodtablars and Scott Landis.

Winning the dairy 4-H contest was the Lebanon County team of Dale Burun, Nelson Bomgardner, Mike Kunkle and Becky Sonnon.

The FFA team from Solanco came in first in that competition with team members: Joe Delong, Tom Arrowsmith, Tom Wiker and Mark Hess.
