

Dairy Promotion Didn't Stop At The Buck

The buck didn't stop dairy promotion last Saturday night. It continued it in a big way. But let's start at the beginning.

When the Buck Tractor Pull owner, Clarence Keener, got together with Show Ease Stall Co. owner, John Kreider, to plan for a dairy promotion night at the regular Saturday night event, they wanted to promote milk and give the tractor pull fans a big treat. So they enlisted the help of a lot of dairys and gave everybody under five and over 65 a cup of milk, white or chocolate.

In addition, anyone who made a 25 cent donation to the Lancaster County Dairy Princess Pageant

Program got a cup of milk, too. Milk shakes were available. The pink cow wandered around in the crowd. And a calf was tied in a hutch for the children to enjoy.

The new Chester County Dairy Princess with her court joined the Lancaster County Dairy Princess candidates on a hay ride. The announcers for the tractor pull event reminded the 3500 people in the stands throughout the evening about the dairy promotion.

The dairys who participated in the event included: Lehigh Dairy, Penn Daires, Pine View, Maple Hoff, Oregon Dairy, Kreiders Farm Restaurant, Turkey Hill, and Ridgeview Dairy-Elizabethtown.

The dairy princess hay ride at the Buck Tractor Pull (left to right) Julie Long, Balinda Tindale, Jeannie Ginder, Jodi Baxter, Larri Rutt, Pam Kindig, (seated) Mary Witmer, (standing) Becky Ray, Donna Bickel, and Elisa Wilkinson.

The pink cow and the princesses.

The crowd watches the Buck Tractor Pull at dairy promotion night

Maryland Fund Raiser Has Record Participation

A record turnout of club-swingers and racquet-pounders helped the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation raise more than $9,000 during its fifth annual golf and tennis tournament.

The event was held recently at the Holly Hills Country Club west of New Market in the rolling highlands of eastern Frederick County.

Some 120 golfers and 30 tennis players participated. There were 161 persons on hand for an evening buffet dinner and awards ceremony, according to Amy F. Leber, coordinator for the sponsoring organization.

Highlighting the evening program was presentation of this year's guest of honor. The award went to a surprised John F. Steadman of Stevensville, a former sports editor and columnist for 28 years with the now-defunct Baltimore News-American.

As co-chairman of the 4-H Club Foundation outing for the third consecutive year, Steadman was unaware ahead of time that he had been selected as this year's honoree.

Last year's honoree was Charles E. (Charlie) Keller of Yellow Springs, former Frederick County 4-H boy and star outfielder for the New York Yankees, 1939-49.

The 1984 honoree was John C. (Jack) Scarbath of Calvert (Cecil County), an All-American quarterback at the University of Maryland in 1952 and runnerup that year for the Heisman trophy.

In his acceptance speech, Steadman said that he was honored to be in such distinguished company. He commented that, although he grew up near Memorial stadium in Baltimore and his father was a fire chief, he really was a country boy at heart.

Workers at the milk shake stand were crowded and busy all night.

Give me a shake. People wait in line at the Buck Tractor Pull.