Lancaster County Outstanding 4-H'ers

because she didn't have enough time to devote to the sheep.

As a teen leader, Stacy teaches a first year cooking project in her home and uses that as an opportunity to spread her enthusiasm for 4-H.

She has also served for two years as president of the Elm-Penryn Club and was news reporter prior to that. In school, Stacy is in both the marching and concert band, the chorus and on the yearbook staff. She is a member of the National Honor Society. She participated in one of the school musicals, but says, "There is some stuff I had to give up. If I were in a musical, I couldn't go to the spring 4-H events."

Sallie has especially enjoyed her animal projects, saying, "It is a lot of responsibility. I learned how to take care of an animal." Her first horse died at the age of 32, and she now has a 6-year-old which she acquired as a yearling. "Ginger had never been trained, and is a lot more of a challenge than my first horse."

A teen leader in the Boots and Saddles Club, Sallie feels that experience helped her with meeting people and working with others.

A senior at Warwick High School, Sallie hopes to attend Penn State University and major in communications, acknowledging that 4-H "pushed me in that direction."

She gave up being a member of the marching band because of the demands on her time, and her desire to have more time for 4-H. She will be in the concert band, the orchestra, the glee club and the AFS Club. In her spare time, Sallie is a junior docent at Wheatland, the home of President James Buchanan. She says, "That's another 'speaking' thing, and I like getting dressed in the period dresses."

About being named the Outstanding 4-H'er Stacy says, "It is a really big, important award, and I felt good that they thought we deserved it. I am really glad because it is something I looked up to when I was younger."

Sallie agrees, "It is one of the greatest achievements for me. I look at it as an opportunity. I decided to try for it because I had done a lot of stuff and it seemed like the right time. It's fun."

Both girls have gained a lot from their 4-H experiences, and have contributed a lot, something they plan to do much more of. Stacy may sum up their feelings when she says, "You have to give a little of yourself before you get anything. 4-H helps in all kinds of ways. It makes you feel a lot better about yourself."
