

When this farmer's ready to grow, we'll be there.

There's one thing about farming that will never change. New farmers will always be born. And the Farm Credit System will always be here to support them.

We were around for your grandfather, and we'll be around for your grandson. The Farm Credit System is here to protect the biggest commodity of all. The future.

Because with the way the economy is today, you have more problems to deal with than the weather.

In the face of deflation, higher production costs and diminished land prices, there's got to be someone who understands the industry. Someone who's committed to helping it grow. And the best person is you.

You see, with the Farm Credit System you own a piece of the business. It's a cooperative venture, comprised of hundreds of thousands of farmers like you. We want to protect your future. Because it's our future as well.

The best way to provide for the future is to have the knowledge that comes from experience.
