Boyd Wolff

worked with Farm Bureau in Westmoreland County. Boyd has been active in many farm organizations, and I believe that he is attuned to the problems of farmers."

Donald Ranck, president of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association agreed. "Of all the names that were circulating, I thought Boyd Wolff would make the best agricultural secretary," Ranck said.

Wolff is the owner and operator of a 410 acre farm in Westmoreland County, devoted to crops. Prior to 1979, he operated a successful dairy operation. Wolff is a member of the Pennsylvania State University Board of Trustees, chairman of the Pennsylvania Ag Democrats and chairman of the West Central Federal Land Bank.

Secretary-designee Wolff graduated from Pennsylvania State University with a bachelors degree in dairy husbandry. He has received many professional and community awards including: Master Farmer in 1970, distinguished service to agriculture from the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Outstanding Grassland Award by the American Forage and Grassland Council, Outstanding Farm Conservationist from the Westmoreland Conservation District, the Golden Rule Award from the Westmoreland Girl Scout Council, and was a Kellogg Fellow in 1972. He is married to the former Margaret A. Gravis. And they are the parents of three daughters. The Wolffs presently reside in New Alexandria.
