ACRES CORN UPDATE:
 Corn futures collapsed today as the bears were turned loose. After the dust cleared, July closed down 6-1/4 cents at $1.68-1/2 and December was down one half the limit at $1.78-1/4. Ideas of increased acreage in tomorrow's USDA report along with news that the Commodity Credit Corporation may reinstate the Swap Program weighed on futures throughout today's session. Losses in the current option were pared due to light movement and firming basis levels. Generic certificate premiums today are a steady at 106% to 107-1/4%.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans closed sharply lower, settling near the daily lows as continuing improvement in crop prospects and favorable growing conditions weighed heavy on today's session. Further bearish influence came from spillover weakness in the corn pit and ideas that tomorrow's USDA report would show increased acreage. The July option closed down 11-1/4 cents at $5.38-1/2 while the November option closed down 21 cents at $5.29-1/2. Strength in the nearby option was attributed to weak farmer selling and tight supplies.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures lower near the daily lows pressured by weakness from the corn and soybean pits. Resumption of the midwestern harvest prompted selling as did private Crop Forecaster Leslie's
