

Mid-Atlantic Soybean Meeting Set

The Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association will hold their Annual Summer Meeting on August 25, 1987 in Adelphia, N.J.

This meeting has been successfully held for some years and rotated between the states of Delaware, Maryland, and New Jersey. The success of the meeting is based on three objectives: 1) A pay your own way lunch where farmers and agribusinessmen eat a good meal and share weather, crop and marketing information with their neighbors from the four state area. 2) Tour the research center and looking at new production practices and varieties, and 3) Are brought up to date on what the American Soybean Association is doing in the never ending battle to keep soybeans a success and a needed part of our farming operation.

This year, New Jersey has set up a program that looks rewarding. The meeting will start with a chicken and rib luncheon at 1:00 p.m. at the Adelphia Research Center. The cost of the lunch is $5.50 per person. A tour of the Adelphia research facility, led by Dr. Jim Justin, N.J. soybean research leader, will follow lunch. An interesting point is the research being conducted that has produced over 100 bushels of soybeans per acre for several years. Following the tour, we will be addressed by Dr. Ken Bader, Chief Executive Officer of the American Soybean Association. Dr. Bader has traveled the world with soybean leaders promoting U.S. soybeans. He is noted for his continuous positive outlook on soybeans as a successful crop in United States agriculture and his common sense on how to keep our organization moving forward.

Those interested in attending the meeting and looking for car pool information, may obtain more information by calling the Salisbury Soybean Office at 301-742-9500 or writing: Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association, P.O. Box 319, Salisbury, Maryland 21801.
