 Huntingdon — A large crowd was on hand to see top quality Holstein cattle exhibited before judge John Howard at the Central Pennsylvania Champion show. The show was held the last day of the county fair- August 22.

The John Foster family of Petersburg repeated last years performance by once again winning the coveted premier breeder award. They also added the premier exhibitor banner to their name this year. The Fosters are the owners of Globe-Run Farms.

Receiving the grand champion award was Jadene Very Rae, an 86 point senior two year old. She was bred by James Smith of Roaring Spring, Pa., and is currently owned by Steve Hoover, Ed Doeberciner and Bob Gallivan. Rae is a Kingway Elevation Very daughter and is predicted to make over 19,000 of milk and 700 of fat.

Another senior two year old was named reserve grand champion. Hillmont Bova Pearl-ET is owned by Jay and Kirk Hillegass of Berlin. She is also scored very good 86.

In the junior division Arissa Kensinger walked off with grand champion honors. Globe-Run Valiant Tanya is a junior two-year-old daughter of the famed S-W-D Valiant. She was also awarded the best udder of the class award.

John A. Foster III, showed the reserve grand champion. Three year old Globe-Run Sexy Darlene stepped into that spot quite easily. She has won numerous championships on the tanbark trail this year.

Paul and Sharon Fox garnered the junior champion trophy with Golden-Circle II Sallie. She is a senior yearling daughter of Hanoverhill Triple Threat. She is not a newcomer to the spotlight either, having won the junior champion title at several other shows.

Allenor Holsteins exhibited the reserve junior champion- also a senior yearling. Allenor Chaplain Trina is a daughter of C Hanoverhill Chaplain.

In the junior show Julie Custead stepped into the junior champion spot with Custead-Valley Slim Ginger. This daughter of Shanghigh Brandsons Slim topped the summer yearling class.

Sha-Vic-Ta Merit Tina won the reserve junior champion for her owner Shasta Georgetti. Tina is a junior calf and a daughter of Kingstead Merit.

Jefferson R. Byler, Petersburg also repeated last years performances by having grand champion bull with the same bull: Bylerlawn Correlator. He is a son of Kishview Correlation.

Mr. Byler also had the reserve champion bull. Bylerlawn Valiant Master-ET a son of SWD Valiant easily topped the junior bull calf to join his herdmate in the champion's circle.
