ACRES CORN UPDATE:
Corn futures settled higher near the daily highs with a turnaround in prices on a short covering rally. Inflationary fears prompted by higher foreign currencies and precious metals markets provided further support along with continued light deliveries and ongoing export hopes. The September option gained 1-3/4 cents closing at $1.58-1/2 and December gained 2-1/2 cents, closing at $1.67-3/4. Generic certificate values have begun to increase as the midwestern harvest gets under way with buying spurred by ideas of increased PIK and roll opportunities.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans settled from 3-1/2 to 6-1/2 cents higher in a buying spree initiated by outside market and soybean meal strength. The forecast for rain next week, and thoughts of a delayed harvest lent additional support as did talk of favorable export prospects. Meal prices surged on talk of possible gaps in shipments from Brazil. The November option closed up 6-1/2 cents today at $5.10-3/4.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE:
Wheat futures retained yesterday's strength and added from 1-3/4 to 2-1/4 cents to yesterday's gains. Buying today was tied to spillover strength from the precious metals and foreign currencies markets as well as inflationary fears. Advances early in the session were fueled by higher Gulf basis levels and rumors that Morocco had purchased 90,000 MT of soft red winter wheat under PL480.
