Panel Discusses

Government In Agriculture

LANCASTER — Approximately 180 farmers met recently to hear panel discussion on government involvement in agriculture at Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service's ninth annual banquet.

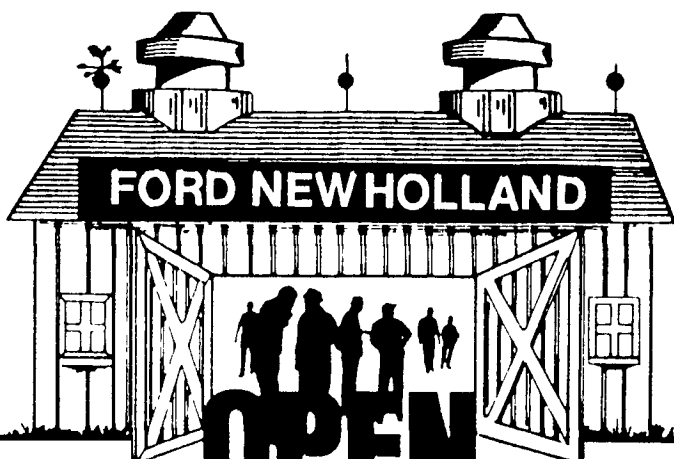

missioner James Huber responded that ownership remains private under such program and that the government isn't interested in owning farmland.

Panelists covered a wide range of topics including the state's pesticide policies and licensing, the Chesapeake Bay Program, and farmland preservation.

Also participating on the panel were Noah Wenger, state senator, 36th District; Arthur Hershey, state representative, 13th District; Walter Peechatka, director of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry; and George Wolff, public affairs consultant and agricultural lobbyist.

In response to concern that an agricultural land-preservation program would lead to nationalization of farmland under government control, Lancaster County Com-

Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service serves 350 growers in southeastern Pennsylvania.
