

Federal Ag Agencies Respond To Pennsylvania Drought

PENNSYLVANIA

Emergency Haying & Grazing
As Of July 6, 1988

HARRISBURG — Officials from several federal agricultural agencies met recently on the growing Pennsylvania drought. They emerged with a firm commitment to concentrate available resources on meeting needs of Pennsylvania agriculture within existing program authority.

Calling the current drought situation "a real setback" to the continued improvement in agricultural economic health over the past several years, State Emergency Board Chair Don Unangst called on all agencies to take all actions possible to help Pennsylvania farmers and others affected by the drought. Unangst is state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, which is the federal agricultural agency charged with coordination of disaster efforts.

The Board also heard reports from all agencies on current actions already underway to meet the crisis.

While many programs are already in place, other programs await further assessment of need as harvest time approaches or further federal action is taken. All agency heads committed their agencies to being in position to move rapidly as conditions worsen and new poli-
