

FORAGE BLOWERS

WHY YOUR NEXT ONE WILL BE A 600....

Ever Wonder why nearly every Silo you see has a Case IH blower next to it?? Here are a few reasons:

1. Reversible outer ring with a 2nd plate of steel welded in areas of highest wear.
2. Automatic air inlet (located under PTO shield) that adjusts air intake when those large plugs of forage feed into the blower. (Reduces plugs)
3. Both gauge wheels can be adjusted at the silo by a hand crank to level the blower.
4. Forage enters the blower at a 30° angle vs 90° on many competitive units. This reduces the need for the crop to change directions and reduces horsepower.
5. 8 - Cupped paddles throw the forage towards the center of the pipe as it travels upward. This reduces friction between the forage and the pipe, thus increasing capacity and reducing horsepower needs.
6. When forage enters our 60" rotor, an inside back sheet rotates with the paddles so the forage doesn't hit a stationary surface: result is less horsepower.
7. Our blower weighs over 1600 lbs.!! Compare this to other models weighing half as much. This weight means added strength and more years of efficient operation.

Many more advantages await you such as our low profile, extended length hopper for easy wagon pull in. We invite you to visit with your neighbor who very likely owns a 600 or better yet, see your local Case IH dealer!!

Case IH 600 - the investment that doesn't blow your money....
