Her senior-two-year-old took Supreme title over competing breed champions shown by Annie Rauhauser, Jersey, Kim McCleary, Brown Swiss, Kelly Morris, Guernsey, and Shannon Doll, Ayrshire.

The Supreme win marked the second consecutive year Bridgette claimed the revolving trophy for the top roundup honor. She is the daughter of Tom and June Boyer, York, and will begin studies at Delaware Valley College in the Fall.

Showmanship competition followed conformation classes, with Sharon Hammond making the selection for best handling in the showing. Taking his first top showmanship award was Junior division winner Todd Morris, Fawn Grove, with Chad Trimmer, East Berlin, runnerup.

Kelly Jo Myers, Thomasville, topped the Intermediate showmanship judging, over runnerup Brad Walker, New Freedom. In the Senior category, Bridgette Boyer was named winner, over runnerup Jenelle Boyer.

In the Ayrshire division, Shannon Doll took grand and junior champion honors with her senior calf Ray-Knoll Johny's Valerie, sired by St. Cesaire Johnny's. Winning the reserve grand and reserve junior was rookie 4-H'er Jason Stambaugh, exhibiting his intermediate yearling Ray-Knoll Liberators Belvedere.

BROWN SWISS

Kim McCleary dominated the Brown Swiss competition, taking grand champion and both senior and reserve champion rosettes with a pair of 5-year-olds.

Brookdale Telstar Nina, by Norvic Telstar, was named senior and grand champion for the Stewartstown 4-H'er, besting herdmate Beaver Creek Danny Bertie, named the reserve senior champion.

Although judge Mike Heath acknowledged the selection as a bit unusual, he selected Kelly Jo Myers' intermediate calf as the Brown Swiss reserve grand champion. Earlier, the stylish calf took the breed's junior champion award, over Kim McCleary's senior calf entry, named the reserve junior champion.

GUERNSEY

Kelly Morris topped the Guernsey runoffs, getting the judge's nod for senior and grand champion with her winning 3-year-old, Beas Bonus Tinkerbelle, by Lyndale Bonus S. Telesar.

Reserve senior and grand champion Guernsey was Golden Lock Fayette Tex Greta, exhibited by Jenelle Boyer. Her two junior calves also took the junior and reserve junior awards and best bred-and-owned, then paired with their winning dams to earn the York exhibitor first and second daughter-dam honors.

Also taking first place honors in the Guernsey classes were Todd Morris, senior calf, and Annie Rauhauser, intermediate yearling.

JERSEY

Jersey senior and grand champion and best bred-and-owned titles went to Lilac-Springs Royal Chas-

MC Tyrbach Vallant Trixie was named senior and grand champion of the York Holstein show. Best Senior Female Bred and Owned was exhibited by Furnace Creek Farms. At the halter of Furnace Creek Sexation Trudy is showman John Doll.

While no class placings were singled out in the popular Kiddie Klass, three-year-old Nicole Marks was lauded as having displayed the "most determined look."

ity, the senior-two-year-old entry of Dover exhibitor Annie Rauhauser. Reserve senior and grand went to Jasin Doll, exhibiting Golden Yankees Sweetness, a senior-two-year-old.

Annie Rauhauser also claimed the junior champion award with her intermediate calf. Reserve junior champion honors went to the winning junior calf exhibited by William Jenkins.

HOLSTEIN

Sunnybend Milkyway Harmony earned the Supreme award after taking championship of the Holstein breed show, then snagging another rosette in the Holstein owner-breeder class. She is sired by Harmony-Corners Duke.

Paired at the top of the Holstein show as reserve senior and grand was Bridgette's winning dry cow entry, Sunnybend Sexy Icicle. Entries from the 18-year-old's successful show string also earned her first and second places in the dam-daughter class.

Junior champion honors went to Bridgette's summer yearling winner, Sunnybend Nectarine Starbuck, over her reserve junior champion, a junior yearling.
