

Watershed Association Wins Conservation Award

HARRISBURG — The Little Clearfield Creek Watershed Association (CCWA) has named Watershed Organization of the Year by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts. The award ceremony will take place on October 3, during the joint annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association Conservation Districts and State Conservation Commission to be held in State College, Pennsylvania.

The CCWA has made significant strides in improving the quality of life within its 27,000 acres of rural land spanning Clearfield County. In September of 1987, the Environmental Quality Board ruled to upgrade the creek to a high quality, cold water fishery as a result of water quality improvement promoted by CCWA.

Since recreation is the main use of the creek, the Association is working to better the creek so it can continue to support the stocked and native fish for recreation. Recently, $6000 was allotted by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to install conservation practices on ten local farms. The conservation practices will decrease soil erosion, reduce fertilizer runoff and improve nutrient management.

The Association has been extremely active in working with the Bureau of Mining and Reclamation (BMR) and the mining industry in order to reduce pollution, particularly sediment. Such studies included water testing as well as collecting water samples for the BMR.

The Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts is a private, non-profit organization representing Pennsylvania's 66 county conservation districts. Activities include education, information and representation on the state and national levels in soil, water and related resource management.
