Ventilation

Ventilation is a continuous process to 1). remove moisture from inside the building. 2). provide fresh air for animals, 3). remove excess heat in hot weather, 4). remove odors & gasses from animal waste.

During the hot summer that we experienced a few months ago, many dairymen removed windows, walls & siding from their barns and installed fans to increase barn ventilation. With colder weather, the barns were closed resulting in odor, gas & humidity build-up. If fresh air is lacking in a closed-up barn & ventilation is too poor, production will suffer. To remedy the situation, the stale air should be vented to the outside. Generally venting through the ceiling or roof is the easiest & most economical.

THE RESULTS ARE IN!!!

In 1989 area Purina dealers had a tremendous increase in Maxi-Sil sales. That's right! An additional 70,000,000 pounds of forages and grains were treated with Maxi-Sil this year versus last year. Why such a good increase? Because Maxi-Sil works. It prevents spoilage at fermentation, on the exposed face, and in the bunk. It controls heat damage and produces a more palatable feedstuff. Purina has a whole line of Maxi-Sil Products to give you MAXIMUM protection for enSILed feeds.

MAXI-SIL Preservative

- Enzymes + Acids
- Mold killers
- lasts the life of the forage
- 1 bag treats 50 tons

MAXI-SIL Liquid

- 3 times more active than competition
- 3 strains of specialized bacteria
- 18 months stable

MAXI-SIL Inoculant

- free flowing carrier
- 300,000 CFU's/gram forage
- 1 lb. rate for HM corn

Many of you are probably thinking, "I'll buy Maxi-Sil when I need it, not now." However, with Purina's Booking Program you must order now for best price, but you don't have to pay until you need the product. See your Purina Dealer for complete details and pricing on Maxi-Sil for 1990.
