

Pres. of DEKALB-PFIZER GENETICS Resigns

DEKALB, Ill. — Kent Schulze, president of DEKALB-PFIZER GENETICS (the seed business of DEKALB Genetics Corporation), has resigned from the company to pursue other interests, the company announced.

Schulze, whose career with the company has spanned 24 years, served as president of DEKALB-PFIZER GENETICS since 1986. The 46-year-old Schulze joined the company in 1966 as a sales trainee.

"Kent has had a distinguished career at DEKALB," said Bruce Bickner, chairman and chief executive officer. "He has been an important contributor to building the product momentum and increased research productivity that we currently enjoy." A replacement has not yet been named for Schulze, Bickner noted.

"DEKALB has given me substantial opportunities and challenges, and I am encouraged with the product and sales advances that continue to be made," Schulze said. "However, from a personal standpoint, I believe it's time for me to pursue new opportunities in a new environment."

Based in DeKalb, Illinois, DEKALB Genetics Corporation is engaged in the research, production, and marketing of agricultural seed, hybrid swine, and egg-laying hybrid breeding stock.
