

Guernsey Queen

More time is something that is difficult for the new State Guernsey Queen to find. At Bedford High School, she is the senior class president, a member of the student council, ski club, chorus, band, yearbook staff, and a cheerleader.

Last year, she was named one of six national winners in the National 4-H Dairy Scholarship Blue Form Competition. Her prizes included a trip to the national competition and a $1,000 scholarship.

Her competition for the Guernsey Queen title included answering the questions, "What would you do if President Bush took the same attitude towards milk that he has towards broccoli?"

"I said that I would encourage him not to speak out against milk but at the same time realize that everyone is entitled to an opinion." Beth says she would also ask him to try ice cream, cheese, or yogurt instead of just drinking milk."

Following her graduation from high school in May, Beth plans to attend Carlow College to major in biology pre-med.

The competition for the queen title was held on Friday evening, March 30, at Chambersburg. Others in the contest included Melissa McDonald of Imler and Carrie McKenzie of Clinton.

Search For Poultry Queen

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.)—The Lancaster County Poultry Association is now looking for contestants for its Lancaster Queen Pageant. This year's contest will be held at a banquet on August 3, at the Farm and Home Center, 6:30 p.m.

The queen will receive either a $500 educational scholarship or $300 in cash. The runner-up will receive either a $300 educational scholarship or $150 in cash. Also, each contestant will receive an attractive, complimentary wrist watch.

The entrants must be single, have completed their junior year in high school and not over 23 years of age at the time of the contest. Also, the entrants or a family member should be associated with the poultry industry.

If interested or if you know someone who may be interested, contact Tom Pantano, chairman of queen contest, at (717) 687-7670.

Breakfast Buddy Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—School districts across Pennsylvania are competing to be named the top "Breakfast Buddy" program. The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion and Pennsylvania Milk Dealers are sponsoring the contest to select the most outstanding promotion of school breakfast.

School food service directors have been encouraged to promote the "Breakfast Buddy" campaign in schools where breakfast is served. The campaign, organized by the Department of Education, encourages students to join the "Breakfast Buddy Club" at school by eating school breakfasts. Various prizes are available for the students including bookmarks, rulers, and coloring books.

For food service directors, one grand prize winner will receive a $1,000 prize, which will go toward his or her expenses to the 1990 American School Food Service Association's annual meeting
