

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Home again and glad of it! After ten days of traveling to Washington, D.C., Williamsburg, Virginia, and Atlanta, Georgia, I'm trying to settle into my regular routine.

One day was spent in Washington at the Smithsonian Institution. This includes 14 museums and of course we only saw a few of them. My daughter and her family drove to Washington and as they are younger they walked to the Jefferson Memorial, the Washington monument, and the Vietnam Wall. My favorite of the several museums that I visited was the National Museum of Natural History. The minerals and gems that were displayed were magnificent and so very colorful. We saw everything from dinosaurs to diamonds and from tigers to mummy cases. We ate in their cafeteria and then took a walk to see the flower gardens. On the way, Cindy, saw a merry-go-round and suggested that we all take a ride. Afterward, she said that she wished for a camera to take my picture as I rode the brightly painted horse surrounded by small children. Next we saw many photographs of life in India in the Sackler Gallery. Another interesting place was the National Air and Space Museum. Here we saw the Wright brothers' original 1903 Flyer and Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis." Also displayed were rockets, spacecraft and missiles. A Skylab Orbital Workshop was available for visitors to walk through. My grandchild, David, was so enthralled with the exhibits that it was difficult to keep track of where he was in the crowd. That night we drove to Powhatan Plantation Resort near Williamsburg, Virginia. My daughter and her family from Seattle had a shared condominium there. Our apartment slept the six of us and there were 146 units all together. Our apartment was tastefully furnished and included all the modern conveniences. We got a good night's rest in preparation for our visit to Colonial Williamsburg the next day.
