

New Post Hole Diggers Have Variety Of Auger Diameters

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)— The new 906 Series post-hole diggers from Ford New Holland are available in three models for tractors of up to 88 horsepower.

All have hardened steel gear drive, a variety of auger diameters with replaceable forged steel cutting edges, and drill points for dependable service in fence building, pole barn construction, or tree and shrubbery planting.

The three models feature heavy-wall square tube boom design and free-turning integral gearbox output shaft safety shields. An optional storage stand allows easy one-man pickup.

The Model 906LD for Category I 3-point hitch tractors from 12 to 35 PTO horsepower is shear-bolt protected. Six- and nine-inch augers dig 42 inches deep, or up to 56 inches with optional extensions.

The Model 906MD for tractors of up to 55 PTO horsepower fits Category I and II tractors and is available with six-, nine-, and 12-inch semi-double flight augers. Double-flight augers are available in nine-, 12-, and 18-inch diameters.

Heavy-duty Model 906HD diggers have slip-clutch-protected drives and optional hydraulic down pressure to transfer tractor weight to the auger point for hard ground digging required by pole barn building contractors. Double-flight augers of nine-, 12-, 18-, and 24-inch diameters dig to 42 inches. Optional nine- or 14-inch extensions are offered for 51- or 56-inch depth.

Heavy-duty Ford 906 Series posthole diggers are available with hydraulic down pressure for hard ground digging. Double flight augers are available for nine-, 12-18-, and 24-inch diameter holes. With extensions, the 906 digs 56 inches deep.
