National Egg Market

Jan. 9, 1991

Prices were generally lower in the Mid west and North Atlantic regions. The market tone was barely steady to weak and cautious. Cartoned and loose demand was light to moderate with scattered and limited retail features. Supplies were balanced to long and available, especially ungraded and graded large. Breakers were not interested in shell egg offerings as most plants had adequate supplies from regular sources. Light hen markets were barely steady to about steady.

N.E. Chicken Parts

Jan. 9, 1991

Trucklot buying interest tapered, however, overall demand remained decent. Offerings of boneless skinless breasts were irregular but adequate for the current call. Whole breasts were short and where supplies were available they were held with confidence. Demand for leg items was lighter although supplies were in close balance. Wings remained in light supply on yellow while interest in white production was limited.
