now has 21 sows.

He uses artificial insemination, isolated new breeding stock, and quarterly blood-tests his animals for better management of his herd. John has been on a 4-H Livestock team and the Pork Bowl team. He is a member of the adult swine organizations and is presently Pennsylvania Pork Ambassador.

John has been to the FFA Washington Conference, National FFA Convention, State Leadership Conference, and Parliamentary Procedure Team. He had held offices in his club, has been president in 1990-1991 year, and holds the County Star Farmer Degree.

FFA Girl Award 1992

Amy M. Byers, Liverpool, is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Byers. She is a member of the Greenwood FFA Chapter of the Greenwood Senior High School at Millertown. She has carried sheep breeding and market lamb projects along with swine and steer projects.

Amy has been very active in her chapter's program by serving as chapter and area president. She has participated in public speaking contests, with the Parliamentary Procedure Team, and has attended state and national conventions. She has shown at the Pennsylvania Fair Show and her county fairs. Amy also has participated in the KILE Livestock Judging Contest.

Amy's 1991 SOE record book won two gold medals for the sheep enterprises. Her swine is supplemented with added minerals and with a feed additive on a set schedule. The animals are purchased from a contract with Ne/La/Le Farms of Selinsgrove. Amy markets her finished hogs through Hatfield. Her hog enterprise records were awarded a silver medal for the 1991 state contest. Amy raises beef cattle primarily for show purposes.

4-H Boy Award 1992

Chris Lyle, 18-year-old son of Dennis & Nancy Lyle of Claysville, is a freshman at West Virginia University majoring in animal science and pre-vet. He has been active in the East Finley Lucky Clovers, where he has taken projects in market lambs, market hogs, market steer, breeding sheep, capons, and vegetable gardening.

He has held several offices at the local level, including president, vice president, treasurer, game leader, song leader, as well as serving as county council president in 1991 and vice president in 1992. His club leadership includes teen leader, county council representative, and camp counselor.

Chris has demonstrated his involvement by participating in several events at county, state, and national levels. He participates in local county judging contests and fairs, sheep shearing competitions, livestock judging contests (Penn State Days), Pennsylvania Farm Show, and the National Sheep Shearing Contest in Denver, Colo.

Chris plans to become a veterinarian.

4-H Girl Award 1992

Stacy Suffel, 17-year-old daughter of John & Shirley Suffel of Carlisle, is a member of Cumberland County 4-H Beef Club and 4-H Sheep Club. Stacy is a freshman at the Pennsylvania State University majoring in animal science. She has taken projects in market steer, breeding cattle, market lambs, and breeding sheep.

Stacy has been active in 4-H by serving as teen leader at the local level, as livestock judging team captain at the county level, and as county council representative. She has served as president, vice president, secretary, news reporter, and social chairman of her local clubs.

Stacy has participated in the York Fair, Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Pennsylvania

nia Farm Show, Maryland Lamb and Wool Festival, Ohio and Kentucky State Fair, the North American Livestock Exposition, and the National 4-H Judging Contest.

She has been a recipient of many special honors and awards, including Secretary of the Year, President of Club of the Year, "I Dare You" Leadership Award, and Champion Livestock Judger.

Lampeter Sheep Show

In this season's final appearance at a county fair, Lisa and Lyndon Reiff again took home most of the trophies with their Suffolk sheep. Lyndon was named both champion showman and fitter, while his sister took championships in both market and 4-H sale lamb competition.

equal of FFOR, less expensive than FFOR, and are now the standard by which the industry will measure performance in the years to come.

Comparisons with JIC
In comparing MegaSeal Couplings to JIC, the contrast is more remarkable, as the chart below shows. In order to achieve the same sealing pressures as the MegaSeal design, standard JIC fittings must be over-tightened. Over-tightening often cracks the nuts or seats, leaks develop, and the assembly must be replaced.
