HUNTSDALE (Cumberland Co.) — Amy Jones and Clinton Barrick came away the big winners from the Cumberland County 4-H Achievement Banquet.

Jones of Carlisle was selected as the Outstanding 4-H Girl during the event held in the Penn Township Fire Hall.

Barrick of Newville was picked as the Outstanding 4-H Boy.

Jones is an eight-year 4-H member who is secretary of the county 4-H Sheep Club and has participated in exchange trips. She helps at 4-H Day Camp and its expo, went to Capital Days and participated in State 4-H Days.

She won an I Dare You Award and was named Outstanding Secretary in 1991. She was named Outstanding Junior 4-H Member in 1988 and Outstanding News Reporter in 1989.

Barrick, a nine-year 4-H member, is assistant treasurer for the county Horse Club. He is president of the county Swine Club, helped at Environmental Camp as a counselor, was a 4-H ambassador, went to Capital Days and participated in an exchange trip.

He and Jones received their awards during a program that was entitled "4-H For Youth." The awards ceremony was dedicated to Deanna Otto, a county 4-H member who was killed in an automobile accident this summer.

Jones and Barrick weren't the only 4-H members who took awards home with them.

Michelle Cornman of Carlisle was named the Outstanding Junior Member. She is a six-year 4-H member who belongs to the Sheep Club, is assistant secretary of the Swine Club and is county council representative for the Busy Bunch.

Cornman won the Outstanding News Reporter Award in 1990 and 1991. She helps at the expo, participated in county and regional Speak-Out and went to 4-H Camp.

Several other award winners were named as well.

Receiving the Forty Year Leader award was Mabel Stroock and her husband Clyde Stock who received the Thirty Year Leader Award.

Joann Roberts won the Gladys Holtry Award. Poster Contest Awards went to Taryn Rockwell and Tanya Zelger.

Derek Heine captured the 4-H Wildlife Award and the 4-H Speak-Out Night Award went to the Flying Fingers Club.

The contest for the Outstanding Fair Exhibit Award ended up in a tie. The two winners were the county 4-H Dairy Club and the Flying Fingers Club.

Amy Jones was picked as the Outstanding Secretary. The Outstanding News Reporter award went to Steve Fisher. Mike Hensel captured the Outstanding Treasurer award.

I Dare You Awards went to Diane Myers and Tony Roberts.

First place in the contest for Cumberland County Club of the Year went to the 4-H Dairy Club. The Sheep Club came in second and the Flying Fingers finished in third place.

The Valley Times-Star newspaper of Newville was given the 4-H Spirit award.

Other events at the banquet included the installation of the newly elected county 4-H officers.

Heather Glennon is the new president and Clinton Barrick is vice president. Secretary is Betsy Walton and Tim Baum is assistant secretary.

Andrew Rock is treasurer, Michelle Cornman is assistant treasurer and Greta Colestock is social chairman.

News reporter is John Creek, and assistant news reporter is Matthew Day, Kim Orris is in charge of community relations and Leah Heine is the assistant for community relations.

Clinton Barrick and Amy Jones were the winners of Outstanding 4-H Boy and Girl of Cumberland County. The award is sponsored by the Carlisle Kiwanis.

The Flying Fingers 4-H Club received the 4-H Speak-Out Night Award as well as the Outstanding Fair Exhibit Award.
