Is There A Tinkerer In The House?

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) - Are you retired, or have spare time — and enjoy unkering" with machinery? If you like to work with your hands and have a love for old farm equipment — Landis Valley Museum's Historic Farm Project has opportunities for interested volunteers to assist in maintenance and refurbishment of our antique and modern farm equipment. Our antique Allis Chalmers tractor needs electrical work; most of our horse-drawn implements need new shafts. These are just a couple of the many project opportunities available to those persons who wish to have a part in keeping history "alive" for future generations at Landis Valley Museum in Lancaster County.

The Historic Farm Project needs volunteer help in its programs. The museum's Historic Farm Project is an active farm, comprised of approximately 25 acres of pastures, crop areas, orchards, and farm buildings, with about 30 rare farm animals. There is plenty to do year 'round.

Landis Valley Museum is owned and operated by the Pennsylvania Historical & Museum Commission and supported by the nonprofit Landis Valley Associates. Landis Valley's staff dedicates its efforts to the preservation of Lancaster County's rich agricultural heritage.

For more information contact: Jeff Powell - historic farm project coordinator or Steve Miller - curator of agricultural history, phone (717(569-0402 or (717) 299-7586. Minimum commitment: 4 hours weekly.
