ASA Commends Ag Advice

ST. LOUIS, Md. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) commends the House Agriculture Committee's recent 26-11 vote to restore use of the soybean loan by eliminating the two percent loan origination fee.

"There was strong sentiment among the congressmen to revive the loan program and make it useable again," said ASA first vice president and South Dakota soybean farmer Larry Diedrich. "And although this is not a done deal, the fact the House Ag Committee made this recommendation as part of their budget reconciliation plan demonstrates the depth of their concern for soybean farmers."

The loan origination fee has reduced the effectiveness of the marketing loan by discouraging program participation. According to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), the origination fee has cut loan activity in half from projected 1992 levels by increasing effective interest rates well above commercial levels and ASCS has projected use will continue to decline.

The two percent loan origination fee on the $5.02 per bushel marketing loan is 10 cents. That effectively reduces the loan to $4.92 per bushel, but farmers are required to pay back the $5.02 amount with interest if local prices are above that level. If the fee were removed, farmers would have a $4.92 per bushel income support and lower effective interest rates.

Congressman Tim Johnson (D-SD) offered the amendment in the House, which was subsequently supported by Bill Emerson (R-MO), Harold Volkmer (D-MO) and Pat Roberts (R-KS).
