

Kid's KOrner

On The Farm With Grandpa, Grandma And Grandkids

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff
BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) —
It's always fun to go to Grandpa's and Grandma's home — especially if they live on a farm. It's even more fun if you live on the farm with Grandpa and Grandma.

That's what Chase and Kirstin

do. They live in half of the farmhouse with their parents Wade and Marcia Kuhns. Their grandparents, J. Loren and Wanda Yoder, live on the other side of the house.

Every day 3-year-old Chase and his 1-year-old sister Kirsten spend time playing with Grandpa, whom they call Pap Pap, and with Grandma, whom they call Granma.

They especially like to watch
Pap Pap and Granma feed 52 cows and 40 replacements. Some days, Chase gives a bottle to one of the calves.

The Yoders farm 85 acres. Last week Pap Pap cut lots of hay. Now Chase and Kirsten find it adventurous to climb over the hay bales.

Chase and Kirsten have a puppy named Annie who likes to romp with Pap Pap's Blue Heelers named Blu and B.J.

Now that the Chase and Kirsten are growing up, their parents are buying a larger home to move into.
Chase doesn't like the idea of moving away from Pap Pap and Granma. He said, "We don't need a new home. We have a home."

Fortunately, the Kuhn's new home is only about a five-minute drive from their grandparents' home.

"I'm sure they'll come over often," Granma said.

That is definite because Chase and Kirsten love Pap Pap, Granma, and the farm.

Chase gives a bottle to one of the calves on the farm.

There is plenty of room for Ring-Around-The Rosy on Grandpa and Grandma's farm.

Sitting atop the hay wagon offers a different perspective on the world for Chase and Kirsten.

For Chase and Kirstin, fun is living on the farm with Grandpa and Grandma Yoder.

Kirstin pretends she is taking a ride on Grandpa's three-wheeler.

How about a hug? When you give one dog a hug, another one jumps up for a hug too.