Farmers Reminded To Report Weather-Damaged Crops

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Before destroying weather-damaged crops, farmers should notify the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) to obtain 1993 acreage credit and documentation for future crop acreage bases.

"When we inspect the area for this purpose, evidence of the failed acreage must be present," said county ASCS official Richard Troutman.

Recently, some areas of the county experienced high winds and hail, which caused some crop damage. Barley was flattened and corn was shredded in some areas.

Farmers are currently filing acreage reports with ASCS to qualify for benefits on their 1993 program crops. The program participants must report crops, cropland acres to be devoted to the acreage conservation reserve, and other land uses.
