SOMERSET

Reiman Farm

Dennis and Penny Reiman and their children Brad, 11; Greg, 8; and Kelley, 3; represent the seventh and eighth generation to live on their Dairy of Distinction farm that was settled in 1762. They have recently doubled their Holstein herd and are in the process of building a new three-row barn with drive-by feeding. The cows are housed in the new free-stall barn and milked in the 46 tie-stall barn. Bunker silos store haylage and will be ready for corn silage in the fall. Even with the herd expansion, the rolling herd average is 20,700 lbs. of milk. The farm is located in Somersset County north of Berlin.

Paul Farm

Clover Hill Farms has been in the family for 208 years and was named a Bicentennial Farm at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. It is now one of Somerset County's Dairy of Distinction farms. Leon and Dorothy Jane Paul, in partnership with son David, farm 377 acres and have 65 Holsteins that average 19,000 lbs. of milk. The Pauls milk in a tie stall barn with a pipeline system and grow 150 acres of alfalfa, 100 acres of corn, 75 acres of oats, and 25 acres of barley. The farm is located five miles south of Berlin.
