

Walker Exhibits York 4-H Dairy Supreme Champ

JOYCE BUPP

York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Brad Walker took home his first 4-H Dairy Supreme Champion title last week, after winning the Holstein show with his senior three-year-old entry. The July 29 county roundup was held at the York Fairgrounds.

The 16-year-old New Freedom member topped the 4-H show of nearly 100 entries with Wams Sexy Lady, scored VG-85 and projected in her second lactation to 22,630 pounds milk, 813 fat and 643 protein.

In selecting the Supreme winner, judge Cam Davis, Union Bridge, Maryland, praised Lady as the most dairy of the contending breed champions, with the best fore udder and with wide rear udder attachments.

Other breed champions contending for the Supreme honor were Jason Stambaugh, Spring Grove, in the Ayrshire division, Joshua Hushon, Delta, Brown Swiss; Kelly Morris, Fawn Grove, Guernsey; William Jenkins, Fawn Grove, Jersey; and Heather Crowl, Airville, Milking Shorthorn.

Placing in the reserve spot to the Supreme winner in the Holstein champion runoffs was Steven Gemmill, Delta, exhibiting his senior two-year-old Woodbine-K Mark Mavis. Junior champion honors went to Dixie Doll, Glen Rock, with her fall yearling and Chad Trimmer, East Berlin, earned the reserve junior champion spot with the second-placed fall yearling. Best bred and owned honors went to Shannon Doll's senior two-year-old.

Brothers Jesse and Jason Stambaugh, Spring Grove, shared Ayrshire breed honors. Jesse took grand champion and best bred and owned with his senior two-year-old Triple-J Gemini Andy, and snagged the reserve champion placing with his five-year-old. Jason earned the junior champion with a yearling, placing over his brother's reserve junior, a winter calf.

In the Brown Swiss division, Joshua Hushon, Delta, took senior and grand champion with Foust

York 4-H Guernsey honors went to, from left, Todd Morris, junior champion, Michelle Jenkins, reserve senior and grand, Kelly Morris with the champion, and Annie Rauhauser, reserve junior.

Topping the 4-H Holstein lineup were, from left, Dixie Doll, junior champion, Steve Gemmill, reserve senior and grand champion, Brad Walker, champion and Chad Trimmer, reserve junior.

Both top Ayrshire breed honors went to cows exhibited by Jesse Stambaugh, right. His brother, Jason, is at the halter of the reserve winner, left.

Showmanship age division winners at the York 4-H Dairy Roundup were, from left, Dixie Doll, Michael Greek, Brad Walker and Rebecca Kilgore.

On hand for presenting the York 4-H Roundup Supreme champion honors were, from left, judges Anne and Cam Davis, Dairy Maid Tanya Thoman, champion exhibitor Brad Walker, Dairy Maid Kelly Jo Myers and York Dairy Princess Cecilia Martin.

Hill Rocket Louisa. Reserve grand champion was the junior champion, a winter yearling, exhibited by Jason Smith, Delta. Jacob Hushon's winter calf was chosen reserve junior champion, as well as named best bred and owned.

Kelly Morris, Fawn Grove, claimed top Guernsey division prizes, taking senior and grand champion titles, as well as best bred and owned, with Moracre Fayette Jinglebell, a senior three-year-old. The junior three-year-old exhibited by Michelle Jenkins, Fawn Grove, was chosen reserve senior and grand. Todd Morris, Fawn Grove, claimed junior champion with his spring yearling, over the reserve junior champion, a winter calf exhibited by Annie Rauhauser, Dover.

(Turn to Page D3)

Joshua Hushon, right, exhibited the senior and grand champion Brown Swiss. Center is Jason Smith, with the junior and reserve grand, and left is Jacob Hushon, with best bred and owned.

Jersey honors at the York 4-H Roundup were split by William Jenkins, junior champion, and Annie Rauhauser, reserve junior.