

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, December 1, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was about as expected for mid-week. Most of the early week pipelines were filled yesterday and this morning the trade was assessing their first of the month needs. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were in good shape at 1.85 and the undertone was fully steady for late week but unsettled going into next week. Line run breasts were in better balance than early week. Product was still available at some locations and sellers asked higher prices but buyers resisted. Legs and leg quarters were in a strong market position and trading was reported at higher prices and the trade sentiment was firm.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, December 1, 1993

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged to lower in the Northeast and Midwest, unchanged on the West Coast. The trade sentiment was generally unsettled and ranged steady to weak. Movement of cartoned eggs into retail channels was in the full range of light to good with the best call for product where features were in progress. Supplies were adequate or available in most reporting areas; adequate to ample on the West Coast. In the Central States region, prices for breaking stocks were unchanged from the prior day. Trading and demand was fair. Offerings were adequate. The undertone was steady. In the Southeast, trading in light type hens was too thin to report prices. Offerings were adequate. The undertone was at least steady.

New York Egg Market
