The Second Mid-Atlantic Alternative Conference is once again hosted by Rutgers Cooperative Extension and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

This years conference is designed to further assist new and existing alternative livestock enterprises, by providing a diverse forum of programming covering various species and related topics. Items ranging from general health care, marketing, management, species selection, and first-hand experiences highlight the conference.

General questions and answer sessions combined with selected break-out sessions will provide information needed for beginners and those already in some stage of the alternative livestock business.

Many of the speakers for the conference are individuals already involved in in some alternative livestock species or are University Specialists with in-depth expertise in one of the alternative Livestock Fields.

You will have many opportunities to ask questions and to interact with the presenters throughout the conference.

As a participant at the conference, you will receive a combined Alternative Animal Directory and a packet of fact sheets and related information on the species covered at the conference.
