portance of drinking milk and the benefits to their bodies.

She won the Earl Strine Memorial Award for the best presentation.

Mellott, who will go to Penn State University in the fall, is a seven-year 4-H member. She was on the 1992 Dairy Bowl Team that won the state contest that year and then placed sixth in the national contest.

The second runner-up in the pageant was Amy Dulebohn, the daughter of Joe and Betty Dulebohn of Greencastle.

In her presentation she played a second grader who was getting ready for bed and was trying to de-side which stuffed animal she wanted — the polar bear that drinks soda or Chloe the cow, which she got after she visited Uncle Joe's farm. She went on to explain that she chose the because cows produce milk and outlined the advantages of milk over soda.

Dulebohn will be a sophomore at Wilson College. She plans to graduate with a degree in dairy science.

Also during the pageant, Julia Myers, the county's dairy promotion chairperson, received the state Dairy Promoter of the Year Award.

Judges for the dairy princess contest were Paul Waybright, Sandy Hill and Kathy Walton.
