icipated in Weight Watchers the last few weeks, and wore a white belt that goes perfectly with everything. It was announced that "Other swine friends were pink with envy since the Duroc-Hampshire cross (black and white) Bertha was chosen for the honor."

A clapping, enthusiastic crowd beat time to the bidding that rose to $7 per pound.

In a surprise move, Manheim Auto Auction purchased Jamie Sellard's hog and then donated both profits and the pig back to the FFA fund, which resulted in being resold for $2.75 a pound to Carlos Leffler Co. and resold again to Ruhl's Insurance for $1.50 per pound.

Deb Seibert, FFA advisor, donated a woven L.L. Bean Country Fair quilt to be sold over the auction block. It brought $120 from Wolgemuth Auction Service.

Altogether, the FFA had $4,500 donated to their fund during the Friday night sale. Funds not needed for the Kansas City trip will be used for other trips and conferences that FFA members attend during the year.

When the prices were tallied, the market lambs averaged $2.57 per pound, goats averaged $2.58 per pound, market swine averaged $1.32 per pound, and steers averaged $2.05 per pound.

Good Housekeeping awards and $25 went to exhibitors who kept the cleanest pens for their livestock during the week. The awards were earned by the Jake Fisher Family, goats; The Pfautz Family, swine; Travis and Ryan Donough, sheep; and John Lentz, steer.

Parents Anonymous

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Parenting can be a tough job. Sometimes you reach the end of your patience and don't know where to turn next — the kids have stretched your ability to cope.

Lebanon County recently began a "Parents Anonymous" program. Stressed out parents can call Crisis Intervention at (717) 274-3363. The operator will take the first name and phone number and have a facilitator call the parent as soon as possible.

Parents Anonymous is a successful self-help group in the prevention of child abuse. The Mental Health Association is helping to launch this confidential system of help. If you or someone you know needs help, call (717) 273-5781 to learn more about the program from Judy Feather at the Mental Health Association.

The reserve champion market lamb owned by Derick Bollinger sells to Hoss's Steak and Sea House represented by Craig Campbell and Eric Lindberg while Manheim Farm Show Queen Tracy Bollinger looks on.

Jody Gebhart sells her reserve champion goat to Ken Smoker of Walter M. Dunlap & Sons for $4.40 a pound. Manheim Farm Show Queen Tracy Bollinger is on the left.
