

Lancaster Holstein Banquet Set

MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.) — It's banquet time again. This year our annual Lancaster Co. Holstein banquet and meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 10, 1994 at 7 p.m., at the Country Table Restaurant in Mt. Joy.

Following a delicious meal featuring baked ham loaf with all the trimmings, our annual meeting will be held. The meeting will include information from our state and local associations as well as the election of new directors for the following year.

William Rhoads will entertain us with an evening of music for all ages, bring your requests, and be prepared to "sing-a-long."

The cost for this entire evening of good food, entertainment, and information is just $10 for adults, and $5 for children 9 years and under. Tickets may be obtained from Nelson Wenger (664-7233) or Jack Coleman (687-6844), or any of the directors.

Be sure to plan to come to the banquet to see the juniors get their awards, and see who will win the calf this year!!

tysburg in February, and the well-attended tour of four outstanding farms in Frederick County, Maryland conducted in April.

Retiring from the board at this meeting were Marvin Brown, president, Robin Thompson, treasurer, and Jeffrey Roche, director. They were replaced with the following directors elected at the meeting: Phil VanLieu, East Berlin; Josie Hess Riser, Gettysburg; and Chris Gitt Wood of Littlestown.

Chris Wood circulated a form to compile an order for cheese as the annual fundraiser for the club. Door prizes, courtesy of local agribusiness firms, also were awarded.

PSU Dairy Nutrition Indepth Workshops

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Feed industry professionals will have an opportunity this fall to tap into the most recent research and practical applications in the field.

Penn State's dairy nutrition group will host one-day workshops in mid-November at four locations across Pennsylvania:

- November 14 Shadow Brook Ann and Resort, Tunkhannock
- November 15 Holiday Inn, Morgantown
- November 16 Ramada Inn, Somerset
- November 17 Garden Gate, Butler

Early morning sessions will cover an up-to-date look at milk replacers, how to apply carbohydrate nutrition to practical feeding situations and how to troubleshoot nutrition problems using PADHIA's body condition scoring sheet.

Late-morning discussions will focus on developing rations for herds using intensive grazing, and feeding dry cows for nutrition, health, and profit.

In the afternoon, Penn State faculty will have the opportunity to showcase their new forage and TMR particle size separator and its implications in feeding dairy cattle. They will also talk about the Dairy-MAP program and share current data on heifer growth rates and diet modifications.

Finally, late-afternoon discussion will focus on how the farmstead, nutrient management, and water quality impact the producer and the environment.

The workshop's $30 registration fee covers room rental, lunch breaks and reference materials. Registration deadline is Nov. 8. For more information on the dairy feed industry work-shop, contact your local cooperative extension office or Workshop Coordinator Virginia Ishler (814-863-3912).

Pa. Holstein Offers Membership Special

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association has announced that Oct. 1 began the new year for memberships, and coinciding with that is a one-month special 10-percent discount on dues.

According to a news release from the Pa. Holstein Association, while anyone may join the organization at any time, those who join by Nov. 1 will receive a 10-percent discount on the $25 base fee.

A 5-percent discount is offered for those who pay membership from Nov. 2 through Dec. 1.

Members of the Pa. Holstein Association are entitled to participate in educational, promotional and service programs at local, district and state levels. Some of these events include field days, barn meetings, tours, picnics, annual meetings, shows, sales (domestic and international), in addition to a strong youth program.

Also included in the membership is a subscription to the periodical Pennsylvania Holstein Profiles (five times per year), and the weekly Farmshine publication.

Pa. Holstein Association members who are also members of Holstein-Friesian Association of America, otherwise known as the national Holstein Association, are also entitled to a $6 savings on registration of calves aged less than 3 months. The savings on the registration of three calves per year about pays for the state membership.

One of the most repeated reasons for being a member of the breed organization is being able to share thoughts and concerns with other Holstein dairymen.

According to the news release, "You don't have to have a barn full of registered cows to take part and enjoy the fellowship that comes with being a member of Pennsylvania Holstein Association."
