

Special Awards And Events At The 1995 Farm Show

Swine Breeders Honor Kegg

Dennis Grumbine, president of the Pennsylvania Swine Breeder's Co-op, right, presents the highest honor given at state level for service to the swine industry to Russell Kegg, Bedford, Bedford County. Kegg had both the champion and reserve champion of the Spotted breed this year and has had numerous other champions in past years. With him in the photo are his wife Frances and daughter Ginger. The award is given each year during the swine auctions.

PennAg Industries Support Ag Education With $10,000

PennAg Industries presented a $10,000 check to the Ag Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania to support their work with teachers to educate about agriculture. Dave Brubaker, executive director, left, said the association board decided they should be doing more to inform the public about agriculture. Rather than doing their own program they supported what the Ag Awareness Foundation was already doing. With Brubaker are Pat Sueck, foundation executive director, Boyd Wolff, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, and Carl Shaffer, committee chairman, Ag Awareness Foundation. The check was presented Tuesday night in the small arena at the Farm Show.

Coble Award To Snyder

This year, the J. Ira Coble award was given to H. James Snyder, Mayport, Clarion County. Each year the award is given during the beef show to honor someone who has given special service to 4-H. Snyder was cited for his work in education and involvement in community and service programs. His work exemplifies the spirit of a truly outstanding 4-H program. With Snyder, left in the photo, are Jonathon Coble, grandson of the award's namesake, and Boyd Wolff, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture.

Farm/City Contest Winners Named

In the Farm/City Poster Contest Sarah Miller, New Paris, Bedford County, right, won first place of $100, and Liz Czarnuszewicz, Churchville, Bucks County won third place of $50. Not present was second place winner of $75--Christy Brunner, Smithton, Bedford County. Boyd Wolff, Pennsylvania ag secretary, made the presentations Tuesday night in the small arena at the Farm Show.

Brubaker Given Cowan Award

Milton Brubaker (left) was given the Charles E. Cowan Award at the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association banquet Monday night. Making the presentation is Logan Bower, president.
