

Spanier Named Penn State President

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Graham B. Spanier, 46, has been elected President of The Pennsylvania State University effective

September 1, 1995. He succeeds Joab Thomas, who will retire on August 31 after five years in the office. Spanier is currently Chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the largest of the four campuses of that university.

Spanier earned his B.S. and M.S. degrees at Iowa State University and received his doctorate from Northwestern University. He began his academic career at Penn State in 1973 as an assistant professor of human development and sociology. He was promoted to associate professor in 1977 and was made full professor in 1981. In 1979, he was named associate dean for resident instruction in the College of Human Development, a position he held until he left Penn State in 1982.

During his tenure at Nebraska, Spanier instituted an ambitious agenda that promoted excellence in teaching, growing national competitiveness in research and scholarship, and distinction in the delivery of service programs associated with the University of Nebraska's land-grant mission. Prior to his Nebraska appointment, Spanier was provost and vice president for academic affairs at Oregon State University, and also was vice provost for undergraduate studies at the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Spanier's wife, Sandra, is an English professor specializing in 20th Century American Literature, and is also a Penn State alumnus. They have two children, Brian (13) and Hadley (10).
