

Busy Week For Pennsylvania Agriculture Department

large cement patio at the entrance of the agriculture building.

Loudspeakers on stands were placed on the patio so those standing in the lobby could listen to the ceremony.

For the post-swearing-in reception, two groups of dairy princesses were set up with tables on the patio serving ice cream, while two serving lines were set up in the center of the patio and filled with Pennsylvania foods.

After introductions by Sen.

Baker and Rep. Pitts, Gov. Ridge discussed his reasons for selecting Brosius as his choice for agriculture secretary.

Ridge said that in his interviews and talks with Brosius, the agriculture secretary talked about stewardship of the land and the values he learned from his parents. Ridge said that Brosius said he attributed all his successes to his mother and father.

Further, Ridge said that he and Brosius share the same concepts for what is good for Pennsylvania.

"Secretary Brosius and I have long recognized the importance of agriculture," Ridge said.

Ridge talked about Brosius's history of involvement, concern and service to the agriculture industry and community, but Ridge said he was more impressed with Brosius's reputation in the community.

"The secretary not only has friends in the Legislature," Ridge said, "but he has support from around the state."

Ridge said that when he was interviewing Brosius, he told Brosius what he thought was important for agriculture.

Ridge said he told Brosius he had four goals — to increase the profitability for the producer, restructure the regulatory process, expand exports, and improve the rural job climate.

"Before (Brosius) left (the interview), he pulled out a document that he had prepared with his goals for Pennsylvania and (the agriculture) industry," Ridge said.

"At the top of his list, he had written down that the top best way (to help the state and industry) is to work with farming and the agriculture industry to make it more profitable." Ridge said he knew at that moment that he wanted Brosius to be his agriculture secretary.

Drug Testing To Start At Farm Show

Any tampering with animals to enhance their show value can shake consumer confidence in the quality of livestock products and detracts from the educational and promotional experiences of the show.

Youth livestock projects are designed to teach young people responsibility and good husbandry as they raise their animals — the emphasis should be on producing high quality livestock products.

Junior market animal exhibitors will be encouraged to complete a quality assurance course to learn more about the safety and quality of their products.

"Both exhibitors and their parents will be required to certify that they have read the Show Ring Code of Ethics before submitting their entry," Brosius said.

The most widely publicized drug is "clenbuterol," in the Beta-agonist family of chemicals. Clenbuterol has been shown to increase muscle growth in animals, while at the same time decreasing fat deposition.

It also has properties which are toxic to humans, and is not approved for use in the United States by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).
