

Kaschak Farm

David and Teresa Kaschak are a brother/sister team that farm 150 acres of hay and corn just north of Waterford. Their parents bought the farm in 1937. They have 60 head of Holsteins, and the herd average is 18,500. Last year they had cows that peaked at up to 125 pounds of milk per day. They make haylage in two up-right silos and milk in a stantion barn. They try to give their cows, especially the high producing ones, all the feed they will eat. Special attention is given to keep machinery in top working condition, and they try to keep ahead of the weather. In addition to the dairy, David and Teresa raise registered bull calves to sell for stud service on local farms and registered English Shepherd working dogs.

Baxter Farm

Neil and Ruth Baxter and son Neil James, farm 440 acres Northwest of Albion in Erie County. They milk 55 registered and grade Holsteins and a few registered Brown Swiss that carry the Ne-Ru prefix and average 19,700 pounds of milk. In addition, they have 55 young animals as replacements. A modified system of rotational grazing is used with three or four paddocks that are rotated on a weekly basis. Beside the cows, the Baxters raise 800 hogs. The farm has been in the family since 1961. Neal and Ruth have three grown daughters that also have families.
