

Maryland Swine Champion

Supreme champion individual market barrow went to the Ken Winebark family of Myerstown, Pa. for their Hamp. barrow. Rear: Mary Anne Poole, Judge Coy Farmer. In front: Brandon and Janine Winebark.

farmette in Myerstown. All feed is purchased, and Winebark does the AI himself. The semen for the winning barrow came from Birchwood Genetics in Ohio. The Winebarks have two children, Brandon and Janine.

Supreme champion pair of market barrows was awarded to Jim Martin of Hampstead, Md. for his pair of Chesters. Martin and his wife Vonnie also took top honors for their individual Chester barrow and their Yorkshire boar.

The Martins raise approximately 400 pigs on their 157-acre purebred feeder pig operation.

They have Chester Whites, Yorkshires, Durocs, and Berkshires.

"I encourage some of the breeders here to show nationally," said Coy Farmer, who himself judges all around the country. "There's hogs here in Maryland and Pennsylvania that could compete on the national level. These guys just need to get a little more active. The quality is here." This was Farmer's second year judging at Maryland. He said that although the number of entries was down compared to last year, he thought the quality was better this year.

This year Rhythm Farm of Dayton, Md. established the William A. Curry Award to be given to the supreme champion female winner each year. The award will be presented in remembrance of William A. Curry, a respected animal science specialist with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service for 24 years who passed away last year. Mary Anne Poole, Curry's daughter, presented the award.

Donald Morrison, superintendent of the swine show, announced his retirement after 30 years at the state fair. His presence during the
